COMMENT OF THE DAY

IUST now there appears to be a contagious enthusiasm for forecasting the result of the General Election.

The takers of Gallup Polls and straw ballots have, very naturally, been busy about the British Isles; and, equally naturally, party headquarters have been keenly interested in their findings. Observers have learned, too, of something new in the sphere of mathematics—that is, the Cube Law.

To most people it is as bewildering as Professor Einstein's theory of relativity, without challenging its accuracies in terms of mathematics for a moment.

Nor is it wise to cast any aspersions on the integrity and skill with which polls and tests of public opinion are taken. Then there are political experts and students of form and the grapplers with "what happened last time" in the scattered divisions of the land, particularly in the marginal zones. Their judgment too is soundly based on the facts as they appear on the surface.

Confidence is strong in many quarters that the Torics are going to have a majority of 150; others put the probable majority as 80. One shrewd observer in a Yorkshire village has computed the Tory majority as precisely 87—and who is to say that he is wrong? None of this, for the moment, appears to disturb the Labour Party.

Their leaders have been quiet-watching a clow but undeniable closing of the gap between Labour and the Conservatives in the straw ballots — and have come out for the first time with an official forecast predicting a Socialist victory with a slight improvement on the slender margin of 1950.

The nature of the message was not disclosed in a radiotelephone call from Kaesong to the United Nations Command advanced camp at Munsan.

The Communists asked that the message be picked up at Pan Mun Jom, Red outpost, at 10,00 a.m. It was considered likely the message may be the formal Communist ratification of security rules worked out by liaison officers of both sides. If the Communists decided

You Miss Key Plays

By OSWALD JACOBY

TRIDGE players find the fun-D niest things o argue about. The defenders in today's hand, for example, falked themselves hourse on what seemed to be a fine point of defence. The trouble is that his bith missed the sure-fire play West opened the queen of diamonds, and South won with the ace. He entered dummy with the king of clubs to lead a heart. When East played low. South finessed the nine of hearts. This jost to West's ten, and South had to ruff the diamond return. Declarer remembered that the ten of clubs had dropped under dummy's kings, so he hopefully laid down the ace of clubs. When East dropped the queen, South drew one round of trumps with the ace and then led the five of clubs towards dummy's nine West thought for a second or two and then stepped up with the tack of clubs East thought for three or four seconds and ruffed with the ten of spades in order to return a heart through South's ace-play didn't work because South had the eight of clubs. He played the ace of hearts, drew a second round of trumps with his king and then led his established cight of clubs West had to follow sult, and dummy discarded the last low heart. Then South was in position to ruff his queen of hearts, after which he could afford to give up a trump trick to West's queen. East defended his ruff and heart return by pointing out that it would have been the correct play if West instead of South happened to have the eight of clubs. West said he would have returned a club-It allowed to hold the trick with the jack of clubs.

Then South would have to guess a very unusual line of play to make the contract (He'd have to ruff the fourth club with the tack of spades, lead to the king of spades, and then out West in with a trump to force a heart return up to the ace-which defence was better. Should West be allowed to give declaser a guess-or should East rely on the location of the eight of clubs? They both missed the one play that couldn't fall. When South leads the third club, South should play low, allowing East to ruff. East can then return any card in his hand, and West is bound to set the contract with one more heart trick and a trump.

Q-The bidding has been: 3 Dlamonds Pass Pass Pass Pass 3 N.T.

You, South, hold: Spades A-Q-J-10-7-3. Hearts A-10-5, Dlamond 2. Clubs 9-6-4. What do you do? A-Bld four spades. Your partner should have at least two small spades, so the hand should produce game at spades at least as easily as at no-trump. Moreover, if your partner comes back to life and blds a slam, you will be satisfied. All you show is a very strong spade suit with a near-minimum opening bid.

TODAY'S QUESTION The bidding is the same as in the question just answered. You, South, hold: Spades A-Q-J-10-7-3, Hearts, A-10-5, Diamond 2, Clubs K-0-4. What do you do? Answer tomorrow.

Get-togethers England's Soccer Practicable?

Asks TOM FINNEY

The England team that shared four goals with France at Highbury seems to be surrounded by as much cut-and-thrust controversy as the election campaign. All sorts of remedies and ideas are being put forward to get more satisfactory results in the future. But the main one is to let England's selected team get together a week or two before the match:

About the value of such a policy there can be no quibbling. Sir Stanley Rous, the FA secretary, subscribed to it in a radio statement early in the season. And I'm certain every director, manager and player with an interest in the prestige of the national side would agree.

Search For Men Behind Assassination Of Liaquat Ali Khan Suspected Plot Against Pakistan Government

From JAMES LEASOR

Karachi, Oct. 23. Pakistan's entire police, military and secret service intelligence organisations were alerted today exactly one week after the public shooting of the country's beloved Premier, Liaquat Ali Khan, in the nation's biggest-ever hunt to discover the men and the reasons behind the assassination.

Intelligence agents are now at Rawalpindi and are believed to have discovered a plot for a coup d'etat against the Pakistan Government.
